

Apollo Ramblings Around the Net: Round Up

Apollo is a community committed to transparency. Leadership is active in the community, the public can hear news through regular AMAs, and of course, everything is made visible through the roadmap Trello board. In spite of a rocky economy, there have been some positive advancements at Apollo... and it's always encouraging to hear community members using their voices to tell others what they're seeing.

Here are 4 voices we came across this week sharing their perspectives on what they're seeing the Apollo team do. Things like: "doing what they said they'd do..." "remains one of the coolest, most innovative projects out there..." and "managing to build even in a bear market."

Check them out if you haven't seen them yet... and if you would be so bold, please share in your personal communities:

Apollo aims to be community-led. That means it's critical that we often see community-generated content like this. Have YOU shared something we should be promoting as well? Send us a link and let us know at: info@apollocrypto.org
